One generation goeth, and another generation cometh;
and the earth abideth for ever.
The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down,
and hasteth to his place where he ariseth.
The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north;
it turneth about continually in its course, and the wind returneth again to its circuits.
All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full;
unto the place where the rivers go, thither they go again.

In western lands beneath the Sun
the flowers may rise in Spring, the trees may bud, the waters run,
the merry finches sing.
Or there maybe 'tis cloudless night and swaying beeches bear the Elven-stars as jewels white amid their branching hair.

Though here at journey's end I lie in darkness buried deep, beyond all towers strong and high,
beyond all mountains steep, above all shadows rides the Sun and Stars for ever dwell:
I will not say the Day is done,
nor bid the Stars farewell.

Go climb up on a hill, stand perfectly still
And silently soak up the day
Don't rush and don't feel so alone
And in this way you will awake

And in this way you will awake
And in this way you will awake

Pick up the pieces you see before you Don't let your weakness destroy you
You know wherever you go the world will follow
So let your reasons be true to you

Stay close to your friends up until the end
And when they know that you feel the same way
Rise up and be free and die happily
And in this way you will awake

And in this way you will awake
And in this way you will awake

shall i pick a quote and set it down on this page?
i could tell you i like it, or maybe that it thinks the way i do.
so someone picking up the dusty old tome in many a year would know how i claimed to think.
and the saying i'd pick . . .
. . . t'would be my favorite.
oh no, i'd never have a favorite!
that is so limiting, so close- minded.

but i felt like saying something, having some words from me.
to let you know . . .
. . . i know how important it seems to arrange this yearbook page.
a book!

it will be looked at by many,
will be in existence for many years!
oh yes, but those who look,
YOU who look and read will not remember our faces, our "quotes".

so . . . how important should we feel it is to create "our page"? . . .
. . . or how unimportant?
for if nothing concerning ourself matters, (because it is so insignificant when looked at in perspective) then why live?
then . . . why should anyone live?
There'd be no world.

Fruit of our love
New and wondrous
To behold
Nature's gift
For us to mold.

Joy of our lives Laughing eyes beguiling smile Growing,
Growing all the while.

Flower of our dreams
Now become A maid full-grown
No longer
Are you ours alone.

Pride of our years Go, and Find your own life's trove and take with you
Our gift of love.

We Wear the Mask

We wear the mask that grins and lies,
It hides our cheeks and shades our eyes —
This debt we pay to human guile;
With torn and bleeding hearts we smile,
And mouth with myriad subtleties.

Why should the world be overwise,
In countiing all our tears and sighs?
Nay, let them only see us, while
We wear the mask.

We smile, but, O great Christ, our cries
To Thee from tortured souls arise.
We sing, but oh, the clay is vile
Beneath our feet, and long the mile;
But let the world scream otherwise;
We wear the mask.

And that is: always to be kind.

THE BUS

I was the last passenger of the day,
I was alone on the bus,
I was glad they were spending all that money
just getting me up Eighth Avenue.
Driver I shouted, it's you and me tonight, let's run away from this big city to a smaller city more suitable to the heart, let's drive past the swimming pools of Miami Beach,
you in the driver's seat, me several seats back,
but in the racial cities we'll change places
so as to show how well you've done up North, and let us find ourselves some tiny American fishing village in unknown Florida and park right on the edge of the sand, metallic, painted solitary, with New York plates.

— Lean and Cohen

("I was a Carnation baby, and baby look at me now")

Go onward young man, for the road is long and rocky; in your travels, remember that the route you take will always be your own decision; don't become prey to others' advice, for in much of it ulterior motives are lurking under the disguise of infallible knowledge and sincere concern; even though some advise is truly sincere, only you know what is best for you; if you see one of your brothers walking a fine, smooth road, while yours is rocky and rough, do not become bitter and envious because there are always going to be those with an easier way to go than you; so instead of admitting defeat, summon the strength to keep on, for sooner or later your road also will become smooth, and then on that day your satisfaction will be supreme; even though you can't afford too many detours in your road to success, don't be afraid to lend a helping hand to a brother lost or stranded along the roadside, for one day you too might be in the same position; don't ever make a habit of using people, because it will only lead to a bad end; and speaking of ends, don't let death make you afraid of life, for living is an end in itself and death is a new beginning. Enough said. Time is passing and the journey is long. Go forth.

I came to MV in 1964 as a third grader. Every teacher I have had has been excellent. I have been under several headmasters, all of whom have been terrific. But the one group of people to whom I owe the most thanks is my classmates. You shared my sorrows and my joys with me during this last decade. I could complain about things to you and you would listen. I could laud orher things and you would listen too. You helped me become what I am, and, whether or not you are around in the future, I am sure you will continue to help me. I just hope that, sometime in the future, you will remember all of the good times. Remember all of these good times we had and the good friends we were, for when all of these things are gone, they are never really lost, are they? With the help of my friends and classmates, I entered MV as a young boy, and I am leaving as a young man. Hopefully I will see you again sometime, and I will be able to thank you again.

When I am able to distinguish between an aquaintance and a friend, my life is much simpler. A friend is one whom you can bitch and moan at, yet still love.

Weakness is not all it appears to be. A strong man is one who can reconcile himself to his own conscience in the face of adversity. A weak man is one who chooses not to reconcile his conscience, but rather allows another to do it for him.

To derive, and then to cultivate aesthetical pleasures is the beginning of a meaningful and peaceful life.

Thank you to all of those who have been a positive influence, and to those who have been a negative influence on me, for you have both helped shape my character.

IT SHOULDN'T TAKE AN ACT OF CONGRESS TO MAKE CARS SAFE.

Volvo was committed to safety long before it became mandatory.

In 1956, for example, we installed padded dashboards: 12 years before the government insisted on them.

In 1959, Volvo became the first mass-produced car in the world with safety belts as standard equipment. Nine years later all cars had safety belts, inspired by Federal regulations.

We don't just settle for the legal minimum, either:

The law says all cars must have two brake circuits. Volvos have two triangular circuits, each controlling three wheels. So if one circuit fails, you still have about 80% of your braking power.

Volvos also have many safety features not required by law:

Like front and rear ends which absorb the impact of collisions. Four-wheel disc brakes with a pressure-proportioning valve to reduce the chances of rear-wheel lock-up. Child-proof rear doors. Rear window defrosters.

Now who would you rather buy a car from?

A company that builds a safe car because someone else made them do it?

Or a company that builds a safe car because their conscience made them do it?

who needs more power plants anyhow!

You do.

If you want to use the products you own today and will own tomorrow. Most are powered by electric energy.

If you want to work. Every job requires the use of electricity in some form.

If you want to live in a quality environment. Most pollution control equipment runs on electric power.

You need power plants . . . for all your wants.
